

the 1990s, the number of people in the UK who are employed in the public sector has increased by 1.5 million, from 2.5 million in 1980 to 4 million in 1999 (Department of Health 2000).

There is a growing emphasis on the need to improve the efficiency of the public sector, and to ensure that the public sector is able to deliver the best possible value for money. This has led to a number of initiatives, including the introduction of the Health Service Act 1999, which introduced a new framework for the NHS, and the introduction of the NHS Performance Review, which aims to improve the performance of the NHS.

The NHS Performance Review is a process of self-assessment and improvement, which aims to ensure that the NHS is able to deliver the best possible value for money. It is a process of continuous improvement, which aims to ensure that the NHS is able to deliver the best possible value for money.

The NHS Performance Review is a process of self-assessment and improvement, which aims to ensure that the NHS is able to deliver the best possible value for money. It is a process of continuous improvement, which aims to ensure that the NHS is able to deliver the best possible value for money.

The NHS Performance Review is a process of self-assessment and improvement, which aims to ensure that the NHS is able to deliver the best possible value for money. It is a process of continuous improvement, which aims to ensure that the NHS is able to deliver the best possible value for money.

The NHS Performance Review is a process of self-assessment and improvement, which aims to ensure that the NHS is able to deliver the best possible value for money. It is a process of continuous improvement, which aims to ensure that the NHS is able to deliver the best possible value for money.

The NHS Performance Review is a process of self-assessment and improvement, which aims to ensure that the NHS is able to deliver the best possible value for money. It is a process of continuous improvement, which aims to ensure that the NHS is able to deliver the best possible value for money.

The NHS Performance Review is a process of self-assessment and improvement, which aims to ensure that the NHS is able to deliver the best possible value for money. It is a process of continuous improvement, which aims to ensure that the NHS is able to deliver the best possible value for money.

The NHS Performance Review is a process of self-assessment and improvement, which aims to ensure that the NHS is able to deliver the best possible value for money. It is a process of continuous improvement, which aims to ensure that the NHS is able to deliver the best possible value for money.

The NHS Performance Review is a process of self-assessment and improvement, which aims to ensure that the NHS is able to deliver the best possible value for money. It is a process of continuous improvement, which aims to ensure that the NHS is able to deliver the best possible value for money.

The NHS Performance Review is a process of self-assessment and improvement, which aims to ensure that the NHS is able to deliver the best possible value for money. It is a process of continuous improvement, which aims to ensure that the NHS is able to deliver the best possible value for money.

The NHS Performance Review is a process of self-assessment and improvement, which aims to ensure that the NHS is able to deliver the best possible value for money. It is a process of continuous improvement, which aims to ensure that the NHS is able to deliver the best possible value for money.

The NHS Performance Review is a process of self-assessment and improvement, which aims to ensure that the NHS is able to deliver the best possible value for money. It is a process of continuous improvement, which aims to ensure that the NHS is able to deliver the best possible value for money.